S. Tylene provides insight on revitalizing your sex life for the New Year!

I once read something in an article that spoke to me. It said: "When we know how to give ourselves orgasms we know how to communicate our sexual needs to our partner." Great way of thinking, and I absolutely agree. But what if our partner isn't fully aware of how to do the things we are saying we need? For instance, I can tell my partner I love it when she goes down on me - so of course she'll go down on me - but what if the way she does it isn't exactly the way I need it? Something that feels good doesn't always mean we'll orgasm, so what exactly are the small tips to help with the already pleasurable trick?

Tip No. 1: If your girlfriend is telling you she wants to feel your tongue pressed against her, make sure you eat her out so good that it's all she'll crave from then on. Who cares if you come up with a face that's soaking wet of cum. Get messy. Too many of us go straight to using our fingers for penetration while we're eating a girl out - Mix it up. Don't be timid about placing your tongue inside of her if she's begging you not to stop (this will give you a moment to apply pressure against her clit with your mouth at the same time). It's a new year, what better time to try staying in while eating out just a little bit more?

Tip No. 2: Let go of your need to control so much. We're so fitted to roles in the bedroom - But what if our roles were exactly that? Just a role. Lighten up! Sex is meant to be fun and free. If you assume your position is only fit for dominant or submissive, you've already taken out room for fun to explore a little. If you naturally gravitate to being on top - Sitback. Shut-up. And let someone else take control for once. It will feel uncomfortable in the beginning, but as time goes by you might just enjoy the thrill of someone else taking charge. If you find yourself naturally being a bottom, take charge. Get your whips out and get into gear. Be confident, and start calling out for demands. You could be timid, but nothing is hotter than a woman putting me in my place during sex.

BEST SEX TIPS PERFORMED BY LESBIANS FOR THE NEW YEAR

Tip No. 3: The more wet, the better. But for who? Make it more of your focus to work your partner up so she has to beg you with a deep need to be inside of her, that she's sweetly talking dirty to you in your ear about how bad she wants you. This will not only assure that she is wet and pulsating for you to easily be inside of her, but it will also ensure that you're worked up enough to give her what she wants. Dirty talk makes for great foreplay. Why? Because communication is key, which ultimately brings us back full circle and to...

Tip No. 4: Communicate more. When you properly communicate what feels good and what doesn't, you not only guarantee yourself a better orgasm, you open up a space for your partner to do the same. Being someone who transcends into roles during sex, I can say that not only does it feel great to cum better (who wouldn't agree), but it also feels better to know that you're taking your partner to a level they have never reached before (outside of doing it their own way).

We're entering a new year, and if we're going to be honest and step up to the plate about giving our partners better orgasms and having better sex, we have to learn to humble ourselves a little. Listen more, eat her out like its your last meal, don't feel like you're required to "put it down" so hard - (you're allowed to let someone else take charge), and most importantly communicate. Dirty talk like your life depends on it. These sex tips may not seem like much, but a little bit always tends to go a lot further than we'd expect.

LOSING A GAME DOESN'T ALWAYS HAVE TO BE DEVASTATING! By Serene Siren

Have you ever been playing a game, whether a video game, board game, poker game, or other such activity - and completely lost your cool? Perhaps it was because someone cheated, or had "aim-bot", which turned you into a sore loser. Even the utmost levelheaded human can suffer from "frustration-fury" after losing an important game. These impulsive rage sessions happen most notoriously when playing online video games with other people. On such games, most likely with people from all over the world, there is often a ton of smack-talk meant to get the other players irrationally upset. Some users will try to find triggers and taunt players maniacally; while others are purely outraged they've lost because they felt like they deserved to win. No matter the case, this type of sudden anger may be more common than you might think within the gaming community, and there are many clips of individuals going completely crazy after suffering a defeat. You can find such clips of all types of people crashing their stuff while cussing up a storm, or punching holes in walls, or destroying their TVs. I have personally seen perfectly normal and chill people do this utter flip and switch where in one moment they're having a blast on their games, and then the next, they're mad and bitter! It can be quite the rollercoaster. Many times, after a big freak out, the angered will determinedly get right back on that game (after they've replaced anything that's broken) to find and annihilate those that thwarted them. It can make you wonder, is there something about us humans that enjoys pissing people off, alternatively does it feel good to get mad? Or are we just used to it and it's become acceptable? If we continue to subject ourselves to these forms of entertainment and excitement, choosing them often, is it a choice or a trend? All are much bigger existential questions than I'm able to answer, but what I can do as a budding writer-director, is take this topic and turn it into a fantasy. What would happen if these gamerragers were two hot girls that turned their rage into some hot lesbian sex?! They could calm down by sucking on each other's breasts like pacifiers and silence each other's trash-talking with cunnilingus. In the next series of movies I'm directing for Girlfriends Films there is a scene where the stars just go completely nuts from their defeat on a video game. They crash and bang things around, getting into each other's faces. They get so turned on by passion and rage, they channel it into their sexual abilities, as the two try to make each other cum. There are not many better ways to make up for a freak-out than to get your freak on! Seems like the ultimate fix, right? You'll have to find out if it's a viable way to settle a dispute when this scene becomes available ... soon on GirlfriendsFilms.com where gaming gone wrong ends just right.

Serene Siren is a sensational lesbian adult performer who has worked for several years in the field with the industry's top models. She is a certified personal trainer and has a B.S. in Technical Communication. From an early age she displayed a passion for athletics, acting, singing, and modeling that has translated into a lifelong love for writing and creative entertainment geared to an international audience. As Girlfriends Films' contributing writer/director she aims to bring a fresh perspective to the adult industry that will please existing members and create new fans. When not working diligently on her career, Serene considers herself a homebody and loves to practice yoga, explore the outdoors, play drums, make music, play games, and chill with her children and pets.
